The physical care of a child has been deeply studied, - a baby's food is now analyzed and measured to the fraction of an ounce. Its intellectual life has been provided for, - we have a progressive system of education from the kindergarten to the close of the graduate courses of a University. But when we examine into the problem of the best spiritual care of a child, we find ourselves far from fixed guidance. Civilization itself, over-refined and sensuous, hampers both word and deed. There is a moral constriction in public sentiment, and aspiration is too often hampered by what others say. Our times are the best times of the world, and yet in many ways the spirit of the age is intensely hostile to a child's best welfare.
