The object of such provisions in municipal charters is to give the city opportunity, for the protection of the treasury, to investigate such claims. The notice is sufficient if it gives particulars which will enable the city to perform this public duty, and we cannot see why the notice in question did not perform this function. How can it be said that a statement of injury to the head does not embrace an injury to the eye Z The defendant s counsel contends that this statute is to be strictly construed, citing S/tee/ry v. T /re Cit 1/ of New York (29 App. Div. 263). The defendant s charter has no such requirement. The court cited three authorities in support of a strict construction of the act, all of which relate, not to the contents of the notice, but to the question of its proper service on the city. No such question arises here. We have been unable to find any authority which requires such a strict construction of the statute as to insist upon more than a statement A pp. Div.
