Excerpt: . . . rare and noble bird, and never shall I forget the delight it gave me. Not even Herechel, when he discovered the famous planet which bears his name, could have experienced more happy feelings; for to have something new to relate, to become yourself a contributor to science, must excite the proudest emotion of the human heart. We were on a trading voyage, ascending the upper Mississippi; the keen winter blasts whistled over our heads, and the cold from which I suffered had, in a great degree, extinguished the deep interest which, at other seasons, this river has been wont to awake in me. I lay stretched beside our patroon; the safety of the cargo was forgotten; and the only thing that called forth my attention was the multitude of ducks, of different species, accompanied by vast flocks of swans, which from time to time would pass us. My patroon, a Canadian, had been engaged many years in the fur-trade: he was a man of much intelligence, who, perceiving that these birds had engaged my curiosity, seemed only anxious to find some new object to divert me. The eagle flew over us. How fortunate I he exclaimed; this is what I could have wished. Look, sir I the great eagle; and the only one I have seen since I left the lakes. I was instantly on my feet; and having observed it attentively, concluded, as I lost it in the distance, that it was a...
