Excerpt: .power, whether exerted in a passion for stars, flowers, and mundane finery--or in contributing to render the painter's art impressive to the imagination, and delightful to the eye. While therefore a spectator is able to enjoy the sensitive perception of the varied gradations of hues and tints, he need not involve himself in the vexata questio as to colours being material or not--whether entities or individualities. That they are not yet really reducible to a single principle, is no reason why they should not be used most comprehensively, and every advance must be duly encouraged for the results that may ensue. We tried an experiment on chromatic personal equation, The Hartwell in its simplest form, at Hartwell, on a fine evening, the expenment second of July, 1829. Having prepared a stone pedestal in front of the south portico of the house, on which was placed a...
